

MEMBERS OF NEW YORK'S SWAGGER SET AHORSE AND AWHEEL ON THE OCEAN DRIVE AT NEWPORT.

1. MISS POMEROY, RIDING CLUB.

2. MISS HELEN CAMPBELL, RIDING CLUB.

3. W. E. D. STOKES AND WIFE IN RUSSIAN DROSCHKY.

4. MISS BULKLEY.

5. MRS. THEO. A. HAVEMEYER JR.

6. W. CLINCH SMITH, 7. MISS STOKES.

8. ALBERT BOSTWICK.

Here are photographs of New York's swell society set on Ocean Drive at Newport. In the group are Mr. and Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes in their new Russian droschky, Miss Caroline M. Phelps Stokes, Mrs. Theodore A. Havemeyer, Jr., Albert C. Bostwick, Miss Josephine Bulkley, Miss Helen Campbell, Miss G. B. Pomeroy and James Clinch Smith—all crack riders.

THREE BIGCYCLE GIRLS WHO HAVE RIDDEN TO FAME.

1. Dora De Witt, who rode across a 100-foot railway trestle at Kansas City. 2. Martie Needles, who rode over a 170-foot trestle. 3. Lillian Delmore, a nine-year-old century rider.

Three Daring Wheelwomen.

MISS MARTIE NEEDLES, of Belleville, Ill., is only seventeen years old, but she is one of the most daring wheelwomen in the country. She recently rode across the Louisville & Nashville trestle at Belleville. The trestle is 170 feet high.

A Kansas City girl, Miss Dora DeWitt, claims and stands ready to defend the title of champion bridge rider of the world. Miss DeWitt did not reach championship honors in the ordinary way—through long years of laborious training and nerve-trying contests. She merely decided one day that she wanted the bridge, riding championship, and pedaled down to the Milwaukee bridge, across the Missouri River, after it. And she got what she went after.

A veteran rider, A. Joe Henley, had been startling Kansas City and the West for weeks by his perilous feats in riding across the Milwaukee bridge. He had ridden across the half-mile of ties with hard tires, and soft tires, and without tires, but always between the rails. When Miss DeWitt decided that Henley must be taken down a peg, she did it by riding outside the rail along a space scant fifteen inches wide, with the swift-rolling "Big Muddy" one hundred feet below, and a rail on one side of her that meant almost certain death if her pedal should strike it.

By her record established a few Sundays ago, when she rode from Gloucester to Atlantic City and return, a distance of one hundred and sixteen miles, Lillian W. Dilmore, nine years old, of Camden, N. J., won the title of champion long-distance child rider of the world. Little Miss Dilmore proudly wears a chain of six gold bars, each of which was presented to her in recognition of a century run. She rides a 17½-inch diamond frame geared at 57.

THE TRYSTING TOWER AT ASBURY.

Where Lovers May Bill and Goo.

Founder Bradley, of Asbury Park, always considerate of young people, has erected on the board walk a trysting tower, made especially for the benefit of lovers. Here young people, or old ones, for that matter, may "spoon" to their hearts' content. Thus far, however, the tower has not been a conspicuous success. Lovers, it seems, prefer to do their loving in a place that is somewhat less public. If Founder Bradley expects to do business in the trysting tower, Asbury Park people say he will have to board up at least three sides of the structure.